

Biting Marks

By HK4167

Published on Lush Stories on 12 Jul 2012

When I open my eyes, you will be gone...

<https://www.lushstories.com/stories/love-poems/biting-marks.aspx>

Waking up at midnight, I feel you Warm body curls up against me Soft arms wrap around my chest
Firm thighs mingling closely at my knee Opening my eyes, I see you Long hair spread on the pillow Biting lips in your dreams Sound sleep like a naïve angel Tender smile on my face, I stare at you So hard to believe such a sweet innocent girl Was the same wild vixen just a few hours ago Gently my sight runs through you Dark silky long hair Little cute nose Wonderful round shoulder And that Deep red biting mark I just left Reminder of The passionate night we just had I know tomorrow That mark will sting Under your clothes Burning on your skin Just like the same mark You left on me I know tomorrow When I open my eyes again You will be gone We will be on our separate ways And eventually that biting mark Will fade No permanent body marks We both agreed Just like our relationship, our affair Not meant to last Not meant to hurt anyone we love But we have this right now Let all the stings on our skin Hidden from everyone's eyes Remind us that On this one day Our paths crossed On this one night Our passions shared For once You were mine And I was Yours Closing my tearful eyes I let myself sink into the embrace of darkness I know that when I wake up in the morning
You will have disappeared The things you leave with me Are sweet bitter memories And that temporary Biting mark