

Her Dark Lord is coming back

By HK4167

Published on Lush Stories on 15 Jun 2012

Copyright 2011-2012 All rights reserved. Property of HK4167.

For her, he comes back from hell

<https://www.lushstories.com/stories/love-poems/her-dark-lord-is-coming-back.aspx>

Special thanks to ShyVixen and LatinSugar who helped me edit this piece. Her dark lord is coming back On this moonless night As the clouds cover the sky The gate to hell will open for ninety-nine nights He has prepared for this moment for a thousand years Patiently waiting for this darkest night Her dark lord is flying back Demons circling along his side Black wings reaching out into the sky Screaming out their fierce battle cry Her dark lord is riding back Riding along with his loyal death knights Armor, shields and swords clashing loud Like thunder rolling over the land Feeling the tremble of earth, she raises her head The sparks of life bring light into her eyes In exhilaration her body shakes violently Regardless of all the chains that hold her tight For a thousand years she has never doubted That he shall come back to rescue his bride For a thousand years she has never regretted The love that changed their path It must be fate that they met in human land Devil and angel both disguised as mortal life As their sights crossed on a carnival night A flame ignited, blasting sparks into the air Groping, exploring, tasting When their lips finally locked There was no denial Of all the desire, the lust, the urge Burning in their eyes She quivered As his slick tongue Explored every inch of her body Kissing, nibbling, slurping Arousing her Satisfying her Yet, she yearned for more Of him He moaned As her warm mouth wrapped him Sucking, licking, twirling Releasing him Unleashing him Yet, he craved for more Of her They gasped in unison In satisfaction In spasm When he entered her Slowly and firmly As their bodies Became one Panting, moaning, screaming Bodies clashed, legs mingled As she bit on his shoulder, holding on tight As he twisted and pulled her hair Bodies arching, shivering, exploding As they reached the peak As they tasted the ultimate happiness Together Collapsing into each other Bodies weakened, minds in awe As they indulged at this moment Of unknown ecstasy, feeling as never before Their disguise faded Two pairs of wings emerged One pair, whiter than the purest snow One pair, blacker than the darkest night When her body was still in the pink of afterglow When his fingers were still playing with her hair Their heart Sank They tried to convince themselves This was just a fling Never again should they meet But they could not fool Their hearts, their feelings, their need To enjoy his lips' touch on her neck To feel her hair's brush on his chest To stare into each other's eyes They could not resist the temptation Therefore they met again discreetly After all the passion They said farewell in tears Yet they met again Like addiction, they strived Never having enough Until Her wings turned black Until Her halo faded Until It was not a secret Anymore An army from heaven hunted them down For the fallen angel that lost her way For the devil that corrupted her He fought desperately One man against the whole army To protect his love, his angel Yet, he was wounded, captured, defeated They repelled him back to the underworld They punished her for her sin Yet she has never forgotten his words As he disappeared in flames Wait for me, my fallen angel. I will come back for you She was imprisoned, hands and feet chained For her sin of corruption For daring to love the forbidden one For her unwillingness To forget about him She was to be held until the day The darkness seeped away from her wings This would prove that she had erased him from her heart, This would restore her white wings, pure soul The pain on her body drove her numb Yet there was always fire in her heart That passionate night, Sweet bitter memory Never faded His lips, his tongue, his body All the pain and pleasure All these years, that memory kept her breathing Trusting his final words Waiting for him Tonight she knows the time has come Her dark lord is very near, she feels his presence She had no doubt that he would rescue her Unchained and free, fighting against all As he promised a thousand years ago She sees him as he sees her When their eyes meet in the air As he lifts her breaking the chains They both read within each other The love, passion, caring, the need That has never faded, always burning For a thousand years Overcome by the emotion that is dormant She releases those tears The tears that were never brought by the torture, by the pain By all the suffering while he was in the darkness far away Now gushing out her eyes With all her strength She yells out aloud My lord, My love, I knew you would come back for me I always knew!