

I Cried Tonight

By mare24

Published on Lush Stories on 02 Jul 2012

All stories are my originals. Please do not copy or publish without my express permission.

I love him so...

<https://www.lushstories.com/stories/love-poems/i-cried-tonight.aspx>

I cried as I drove home tonight But you didn't know. I left my heart out in the air And it cracked as it fell. But it's not the first time My heart has been damaged or contused. Can you not see The pain that seeps out of me? Sometimes I think I love too much, And, while you love, it's not as deep. Should I stay and be in pain, Or should I end it now while I am still sane? I saw a glimpse of what used to be When you returned last week. My heart leapt and beat a million beats, But now it's slowed to a steady, simmering pace. Do I no longer stir your blood Or cause your body to heat? If so, please can we end this now And say once it was good? I cried as I drove home tonight But you didn't know. I left my heart out in the air And it shattered as it fell.