I met you when I didn't care anymore I spent many days alone And one day you came along I liked you so much I made a mess of things I couldn't say words I could only stare into space Your eyes were different Than others that had seen my face And I wanted to hold you and kiss your face I didn't want to let you go I met you and I just want you to know I wish you could get to know me some more and let me kiss your lips because they are the lips I long to kiss the lips I cant resist
