Aria 1: Rejoice Scarred spirits converge Burning whirlpool of molten lust Affecting, a comforting surge Mound on mound, feels so just Scars heal, lets love emerge Mental orgasms blow away rust Tenderness and rejoice to the verge Leaping, lifting and flying we must Swirling and twirling in urge Subconscious peaks, a hint of distrust Feelings and secrets scourge Thumbling back towards earth's crust Aria 2: Remorse Fearfull free fall, what will be lost Lustfull lady stripped, illusion bare Lamenting lord begging to accost Clawing up in full dispair Hitting ground, crashed and tossed On his back, shaking head to focus stare High up she is, his star in frost Whispers about, he'll no longer care Crawling on knees, feelings glossed Numb in remorse, his maiden so fair Head bent low, with his hands embossed Again his soul solely wanders life's fair Aria 3: Recluse Lord turns poet to vent on his own Pondering and wondering, what if Impressions weaving, poems sewn Birds feather scratching glyph Writing in blood, wailful and alone Back bend and broken, taking the biff Her rays of compassion, his moan Writing and scribling all in a whiff In his recluse, sitting on his throne Ruling land disappeared off cliff Wanting her lust but that is gone Her love remains, pure spiff Aria 4: Redemption Confiding again, resisting searing sun Angel pushes, her words evangelic Braking down mental prison Whispers about, secrets made public People consoling, no longer forlorn Discovering friends, no longer exilic Heart starting to heal, no longer torn Communal acceptance, no longer diabolic His star still shines, feeling reborn Their love no longer melancholic Their love eternal, for ever sworn Redemption turned sexual lust archaic Aria 5: Release Poet arises, peering about Hearts desire, burning still Release required, black out Lust full rage without any skill Angel divine, helps with doubt Union made in all good will Release facilitated, so devout Sexual tension again can spill Revering his star to not bale out Their love platonic and still Release in truth can now branch out His heart no longer crushed by the mill
