

To My Sweet love

By michael6741

Published on Lush Stories on 21 May 2010

Dedicated to the one that made my life complete.

<https://www.lushstories.com/stories/love-poems/to-my-sweet-love.aspx>

I walked alone in the darkness My heart was cold and filled with sadness Anger and despair were my only companions Love had left me hurt and alone The pain was a weight like a stone I carried my burden in silence For no one would care to hear my prayer I prayed before sleep every night That someday there would be light I made so many mistakes in the past Thought I found love, but it would never last The sun would always turn to rain And along would come the familiar pain So I walked alone Then that fateful day came When you found me broken and lame You were the first to break my heart I still loved you even apart You brought the sun back Put my heart back on the right track Now there's light to see The strength that is inside of me The strength that was always there To make my life fair I owe you my life You took away all the strife Made everything okay In my heart, you will always stay